THE ROLE OF TOURISM IN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

Date: 16th and 17th January 2019

Organized by

Department of Geography

Report on "The Role of Tourism in Sustainable Development"

On 16th and 17th January 2019 Department of Geography hosted the two day seminar on "The Role of Tourism in Sustainable Development". The seminar was organized as the part extracurricular activity. A total of forty four delegates took part in the seminar that included college principals, faculty members and students from college. The Introductory speech was given by Dr. Dalimbe S.N. head department of Geography, He also welcomed the Guests and other Dignitaries. The program began at 10:30am with welcome address by Dr. A. A. Vikhe, Principal of the college. The dignitaries on the dais were felicitated with flowers by the Principal and Vice- Principal.

The key note address given by Dr. Praveen Saptrushi, eminent Professor Salisbury University, USA, the chief guest of the inaugural function. In his speech, he focused on Tourism plays important role in overall development. Dr. Praveen Saptrushi is an eminent Geomorphologist and his field of specialization is Climatology. During the first half of session, Dr. Praveen Saptrushi, delivered his lecture on the fundamental concepts of Tourism highlighting the ten classical concepts of Religious Tourism as well as the modern concepts of tourism also. The tourism sector offers a great potential for economic cooperation and growth, and will certainly play a significant role in the CAREC region going forward. ADB stands ready to work together with CAREC member countries and other development partners to promote a regional approach for sustainable tourism development. Private sector dominates the tourism industry in most countries. Robust private sector involvement is indispensable to the development of tourism destinations, as it can bring greater operational efficiency and innovations. It also helps address public budget constraints for the industry. More private sector investments in high quality tourism infrastructure and services are needed in the region to meet the growing tourism demand in a sustainable manner. Going forward, we will increase our efforts to mobilize technical and financial resources to support the development of essential tourism infrastructure, create a conducive environment to attract private tourism investments, and enhance the attraction of the CAREC region as a competitive tourism destination globally.

This year, ADB will approve $2 million technical assistance for supporting the development of a CAREC tourism strategy and a regional investment framework leading to 2030. In addition, we will strive to provide value-adding knowledge and capacity building services to member countries on key aspects of sustainable tourism development. His lecture more appealing to the participants and students because of the excellent photographs captured by himself & presented in a relevant manner.

In the first session Dr. Jyotiram More, Chairman BOS Geography, SPPU Pune talked about the overall about Historical Geography and its relation with tourism activities. On the international dimensions of historical geography, Alan Baker discussed the history of the ICHG and a related institution, the Journal of Historical Geography, both founded in 1975. The first British-Canadian Symposium on Historical Geography was held at Queens University, Kingston, Ontario, in fall 1975 and dealt with settler colonialism in Canada. The idea for the Canadian meeting was, according to Baker, first suggested at the Annual Conference of the Institute of British Geographers at Birmingham in 1973. The fraternity and hospitality of those early meetings is an important tradition and evident influence on the composition of the ICHG today. The contributions of key figures in the ICHG's evolution, like Alan Baker and Graeme Wynn, were appropriately recognized and honored through the conference programme. Baker's retrospective was not entirely surprising: in any discussion amongst AngloAmerican historical geographers, it is never long before they recall the halcyon days of the 1970s.

The second session, Dr. Arjun Musmade, member of Bos in Geography, SPPU Pune talked about different service sectors related tourism. He shared Tourism is one of the fastest growing industries in the world—and developing Asia is a key part of its expansion. The region offers incredibly diverse tourist destinations and has become a major source of global tourists. Tourism can generate jobs, raise incomes, and help revitalize stagnant regions of countries. However, a rapid surge of tourists can also put stress on local infrastructure and have serious environmental consequences. Asia's policy makers face the challenge of guiding the expansion of tourism in a way that protects the environment and improves the quality of life of local residents. A distinguished panel gave their insights on these issues at this seminar. First day of the seminar 10 participants presented research papers of various subjects' related tourism.

Second day on 17th January 2019 first planetary session was start at 10:00am. In this session 09 participants present their research papers. There was fruitful discussion and interaction between participants and both the paper presenters. At the end of this session Mr. Landge. A. A. proposed the vote of thanks, the session ended at 01:00pm.

Second day second session the Valedictory function was start at 02:00pm. Dr. Dalimbe S.N. head department of Geography, He also welcomed the Guests and other Dignitaries. The dignitaries on the dais were felicitated with flowers by the Principal and Vice- Principal. The Chief gust of the Valedictory function Dr. Vijay S. Bhagat, Member, BOS in Geography, SPPU, Pune elaborate tourism is the largest and one of the fastest emergent economic activities. In many developing countries tourism is seen as a main instrument for eradication of regional disparity. As an economic activity, it may have a positive impact on the employment, infrastructural development, emerging new markets, foreign exchange and finally on gross income and production.

Dr. Rajendra Zolekar, Nashik explain the role of tourism in sustainable development has three major aspects environmental, socio-cultural and economic. Sustainability involves durability, therefore sustainable tourism includes the optimum use of biodiversity, ecology, culture and local communities. This seminar focused on the general views on tourism and sustainable development and give the opinions which are useful for construction of strategies and policy in reference for tourism development. About the Seminar:

Tourism is largest industries and one of its fastest emergent economic activities. In many developing countries tourism is seen as a main instrument for eradication of regional disparity. As an economic activity, it may have a positive impact on the employment, infrastructural development, emerging new markets, foreign exchange and finally on gross income and production. Tourism development has boosted the small scale industries and businesses like art and craft, flower gardening, transport etc. in the surrounding area. In spite of the unique advantages of tourism, in some areas, the unplanned development of tourism also results in negative consequences. Unplanned and uncontrolled tourism growth can result in such a deterioration of the culture and environment. The environment, being the major source of tourism industry, therefore be protected in order to have further growth of tourism and economic development in the future.
